Watertown weekly leader_1907-06-14. Widow Gets Old Relic.

- Pocket Book of Capt. Mueller, Killed at Peach Tree Creek, Presented Forty-three Years Later. Kaukauna, WI, June 7. A memorable incident of the forty-first encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic of Wisconsin in Oshkosh was the presentation of a relic of the battle of Peach tree Creek to the widow of Capt. Robert Mueller. After the fight, Private Nicolas Loingen (?sp) over the field an picked up a pocketbook which has been the property of Capt. Mueller, who lost his life there. After forty-three years he has presented it to Mrs. Mueller who came to this city as a delegate of the Woman's Relief corps and who is greatly gratified at coming into possession of the relic.

For one of the last Milwaukee fire companies to have a name as well as a number, this "A.A.R. Butler No. 6" house was built in 1877 at Franklin & Brady Sts. Note the police sentry box in immediate foreground. It's easy to see where modern proponents of downtown Milwaukee's controversial "tourist tower" got the idea.

Dispute over Distribution of Farm Land

First Lawsuit:
Hannig et. al versus Mueller et. al March 1890

- Amalia “Louise” Hannig filed a lawsuit March 1890 (after Elizabeth’s death in 1888) against the estate of Carl Mueller, regarding the Bond for the land created April 25, 1860. Carl died intestate.
    1. Louise is a rightful beneficiary (JF William’s daughter Eliza mistakenly listed) as Carl intended for 7 of his children to be beneficiaries (all except Charles G).
    2. Plaintiff (Louise) claimed title to the land by virtue of a tax title executed Oct. 2, 1882 and recorded Oct 1883. A deed with Joseph Schlitz Brewing Company for Feb 10, 1890 was recorded for $4,400, with downpayment of $1,000 paid to Louise, with balance due when the title was obtained.

- Court Decision entered Dec. 17, 1892. Louise was deemed a rightful beneficiary; but she had no individual right to sell the land even though all other beneficiaries were deceased and each died intestate.

- Plaintiffs sued for a partition of the property. Prior to lawsuit 1, multiple parcels sold without proper titling.
- Edward R is Capt. Robert Edward's son; Frank A. is Charles G Mueller's son.
- Court Decision: Land sale by public auction of Lot 23 in Koeneman's subdivision was scheduled for April 8, 1893 at 2 o'clock.

Comet Club History

- Fundraising grew overtime. By 1910, the 27th annual masquerade ball drew a crowd of 2000 people, with most wearing costumes. Events were often held at Turner Hall (known in German as Turnverein Hall, still stands at 4th in Milwaukee)

Successful fundraising allowed for:

- Purchase of a building to hold meetings and events at 3rd and Chestnut in 1899.
- Purchase of a place on Pewaukee Lake, Waukesha, ~1895 with a small structure. Property was owned from about 1895-1925.

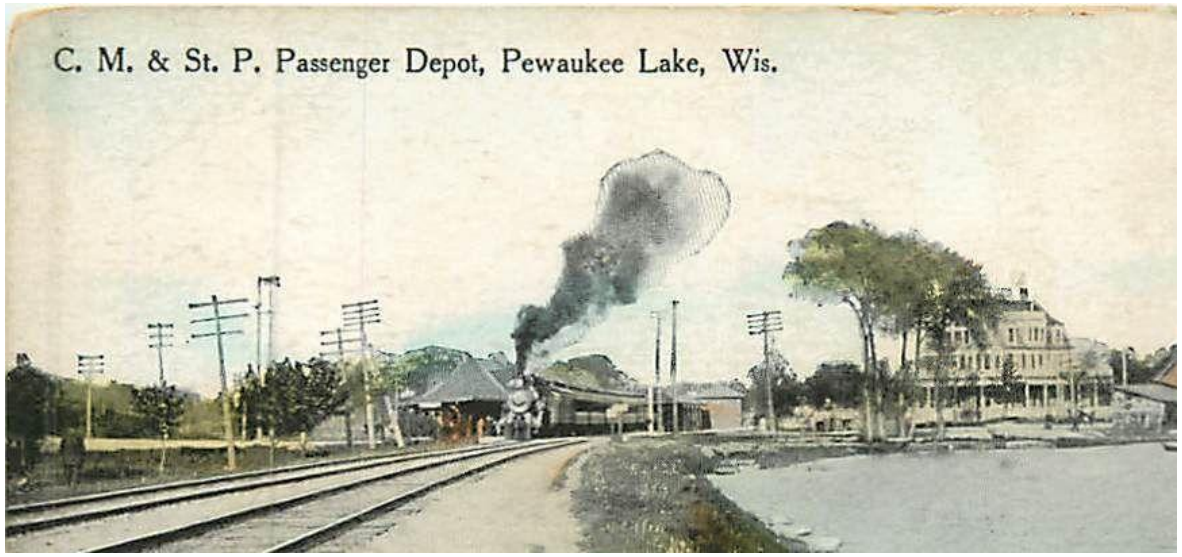

Pewaukee Lake Comet Club, sketched by Art Mueller ~1983

The building on the right was the original club house. The lower level of the building was used as the kitchen and dining area. There was also an insulated room where their barrels of beer were kept, along with plenty of Ice. The beer was tapped from the outer wall of this cooler. There was also a screened in porch across the front. The middle level of the house had an L-shaped porch, and was the congregating place for the women folks. The sleeping quarters were in the upper level. Immediately behind the main building was the Ice house, and the well. The house to the left on the sketch was built at a later date, and was used as sleeping quarters for the women and children. Power was provided by a windmill.

Pewaukee Lake Memories
Bob Sr.

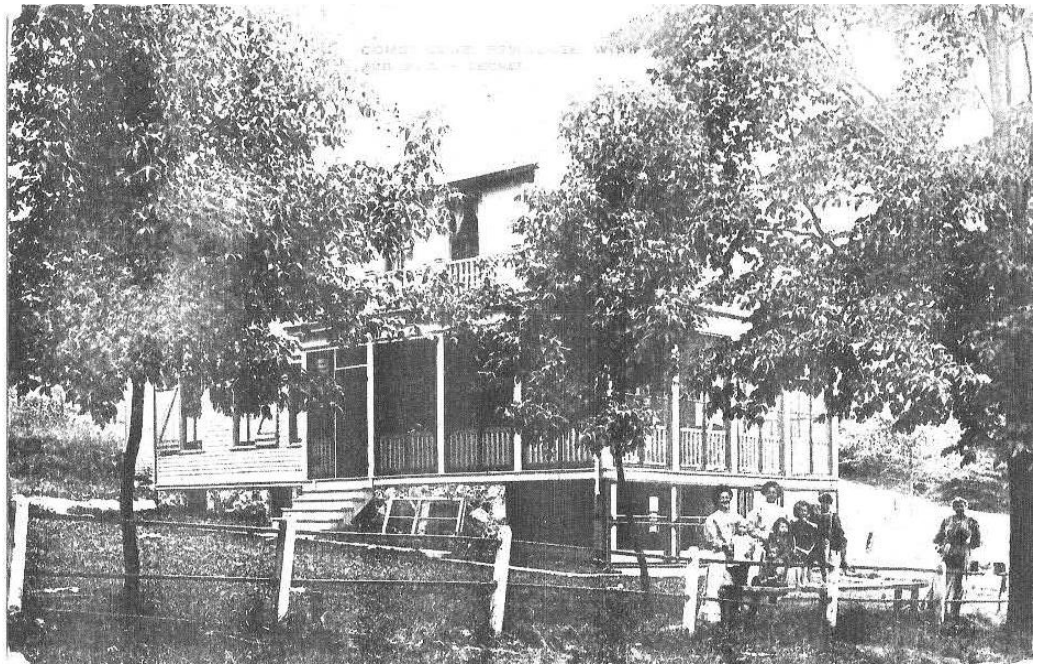

- Families two-week allotment of vacation time on Pewaukee Lake.
- The trip to Pewaukee was one hour, 20-mile trip.
- The train ride from Milwaukee to Pewaukee depot.
- Dad claimed our stuff and hired a dray for our one-mile trip to the Comet Clubhouse.
- Dentingers always shared our vacations.

Pewaukee Lake Memories, Bob Sr.

- The frequent swims, crabbing, fishing and all the other water and boating adventures (see photo album passed down from Suzie Van Hecke)
- Night crabbing parties: We'd wade barefooted along the shore with lanterns, turning stones in the water where the crabs lurked. Then the women would boil water in a big pot to which they added caraway seeds and salt. The crabs were then dumped in and boiled. We'd have to capture miniscule chunks of crab meat by cracking claws and tails of small crabs. A feast of crab meat.
- We'd catch a three-inch fish while fishing off the pier. Then we'd clean it and would wait patiently while it was fried along with our breakfast eggs by an understanding mother.
- Wegerman's Resort which was just a block down the dusty Park Ave was really nothing more than a saloon on the waterfront. Some of the safaris to the Village would be interrupted by a jail stop at Wegermans. We would chip in a penny a piece so we could distract Mr. Wegerman at one end of the bar by buying a 3-cent soda pop, while pocketing candy at the other end.
- How to explain the impact of rural grandeur to the mind of a city bred boy?
